Marie, a holder of Master's degree in Italian, taught Italian language in secondary schools in France prior moving to the UK in 2006. Here she started teaching French and Italian in some secondary schools and privately. She is currently giving trainings in business French language to working adults, GCSE and A-level students. She is fluent in English, French and Italian. As a result, in her passion for languages, in 2016 she set up a meet up group called Lingomix to help new learners improve their language proficiency. The group has noticeably grown since then and currently has more than 500 members.
